NEW SCHEDULE PUT IN EFFECT TO PITTSBURG

Time of Trip Shortened By Pittsburgh Rail-ways

WHEN THE CARS ARRIVE

Half Hour Service Given During the Rush Hours of the Day

The Pittsburgh Railway company has made a new change in their schedule, and the time going to and coming from Pittsburgh has been shortened seven minutes. The Pittsburgh car will make connection with the Monessen and Belle Vernon cars at Monessen bridge to and from Pittsburgh, which is one of the best features of the change.

Cars due at Fifth street, Charleroi, for Pittsburgh, beginning at 5:12 will continue every hour until 8:12 when all half hour cars will start. These will be due at Fifth street at 12 and 42 minutes after the hour. The half hour cars will be discontinued after 6:12 o'clock, and hour cars will run until 10:12 leaving Fifth street. The last Pittsburgh car will leave at 11:42.

Cars from Pittsburgh will be due at the corner of Fifth street at 18 minutes after the hour and 48 minutes after the hour. When the half hour cars are not running in the early morning and evening cars will be due at 48 minutes after the hour.

The new schedule was put in effect and it is expected to prove more satisfactory than the old one.

CHARLEROI HAS WOMAN IN BLACK

Mysterious Personage Nearly Scared Traveling Man Into Fits

Monongahela has lost its Woman in Black and Charleroi has her. She is reported to be roaming about during the early evenings and various parts of the night in town. Recently it is said she stopped a traveling man and fired a bunch of questions at him until he was nearly scared into fits, and ran to his hotel like a scared rabbit. Others have seen her, it is stated, and all the mystery Monongahela attached to her uncanny presence appears.

EDUCATORS WILL HOLD A MEETING

Round Table to Be In Session at Washington Saturday

ADDRESSES TO BE MADE

The members of the Principals' Round Table of Washington county will hold their first regular meeting of the present school term in the public meeting room the court house on Saturday, November 19, the opening session to begin at 10:30 o'clock. After the election of officers, an address will be given by Dr. H. W. Temple, followed by a discussion, the subject being "Reading in the First Three Grades," by Supt. James G. Pentz of Charleroi, F. W. McVay and N. G. Parke. County Superintendent L. R. Cramrien will make an address in which a review of the proposed new school code will be given. The principals will be asked to discuss the subject briefly. It is urged that all members of the Round Table attend this meeting.

FEW DEATHS TO RECORD

Number of Births Greatly Exceed Mortalities in District

There were five times more births than deaths in the Charleroi district, during the month of October, as shown by the report of Registrar of Vital Statistics Dr. Edwin McKay. Forty-five births are recorded in Charleroi, Fallowfield and Twilight. Forty-one of these were in Charleroi, three in Fallowfield township and one in Twilight borough. There were nine deaths recorded, all in Charleroi.

WEST PENN COMPANY DOUBLING CAPACITY AT BIG POWER PLANT

Additions and Improvements Being Made at Connellsville to Increase Producing Facilities

At a meeting of superintendents and solicitors of the West Penn Electric company in Connellsville yesterday, reports were made which showed that the company is enjoying a good season of prosperity. Electricity is replacing gas largely in Washington, Fayette and Westmoreland counties, it is stated. The West Penn Electric company is making extensive improvements at the Connellsville power house, which will double the capacity. This is being done instead of erecting an entirely new plant along the Monongahela valley at this time. It is stated that eventually a power plant will be located nearabout the West Penn, possibly near Speers, where the company has property.

HUNTING PARTY RETURNS FROM CANADA WITH GAME

Washington Countians Bring Home Three Deer and May Get Hide of Another Freak One Shot

CHARLEROI MAN BRINGS DOWN A BEAR

After six weeks of a most successful hunting trip in the northern part of Ontario, Canada, Charles S. Van Voorhis, of Charleroi; J. H. Keys and D. T. Hosack of Scenery Hill and P. M. Tombaugh of Washington returned home today, laden with the game they had shot in the northern wilds. The party brought back three of the largest deer that had been seen in that section, averaging from 265 to 300 pounds each. One freak deer was shot being a beautiful white one. This was held by the Canadian game officials, and may be recovered later. Two moose were shot and Van Voorhis shot an immense black bear weighing about 450 pounds. The party had some rich experiences. They were located during the most of their trip about 300 miles south of James Bay. They camped out and canoed or tramped from place to place. When they left there was 14 inches of snow on the ground.

DIVIDENDS DECLARED

Uniontown Bank Pays Average of 22 Per Cent Annually

LEADS ON HONOR ROLL

A semi-annual dividend of 11 per cent has been declared by the directors of the First National Bank of Uniontown, which is known as J. V. Thompson's bank. At the time of the declaring of the dividend the sum of $37,000 was added to the surplus fund which now reaches the grand total of $1,400,000 on a capital stock of $100,000. The 11 per cent semi-annual is not unusual. The Uniontown First National bank leads the roll of honor among the National banks of the United States and by its wise and judicious banking business is able from year to year to declare the 22 per cent dividend, and each time make a handsome addition to the surplus.

MANY NEW HOPPER CARS ON DIVISION

Railroad Handling Much of Coal Trade Along the Valley

This week a number of new steel hopper cars, just put out by the car manufacturers at McKees Rocks and other places, are being sent up the division for loading with coal and coke and consigned to various markets. Apparently the close of the lake trade season has not seriously affected railroad shipments of coal, but this is owing to the fact that many of the mines shipping by river have by reason of the low water been compelled to get their coal out by rail.

Superintendent Pentz Proud of His Eighth Grade and High School Pupils

Pupils of the Charleroi high school and the eighth grade who went to Monessen yesterday morning to view the tuberculosis exhibit there and to hear the lecture given in connection, have been complimented upon their behavior on the trip. It would be expected that there would be more or less exuberance of spirits among them in escaping from irksome school pursuits, but such was not manifested. Supt. Pentz, who went along, is mighty proud of his eighth grade and high school pupils.

UNUSUAL FEATURES IN CASE

One Foreigner Charges Another With Changing Checks

WHO LOADED THE COAL?

A case that had some unusual features was tried before Judge Taylor yesterday afternoon. The defendant was George Subecz, a miner at the Vesta No. 4 mine, near California. The private prosecutor was John Casbo. The defendant was charged with changing a coal check, a frequent crime among miners. In this case though the defendant admitted that he took the private prosecutor's check off a car and put his own on, he said that the car load of coal was his and he was entitled to put his check on the car. It appeared from the testimony that the defendant had shot down the coal, and that the private prosecutor had gone into the room and loaded a car of coal from the coal shot down by the defendant. The defendant coming the next morning and finding the car loaded, the private prosecutor's check on it, took the check off, threw it away and put his own on. He was acquitted but ordered to pay costs.

Rev. and Mrs. L. Z. Robinson of the Speers, Allenport and Ebenezer M. The people gave freely and among many other things remembered that preachers are usually fond of chickens. With the number received Mr. Robinson may go into the chicken business as a side issue. Although the weather was disagreeable, yet it did not prevent a large crowd from being present while many who did not go sent their gifts. The crowd assembled about 1:30 and a very pleasant afternoon was spent until about 4 o'clock when all left for their homes, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Robinson a successful year.

Weights and Measures

In view of the talk during the recent campaign of legislation for the benefit of working people, none would secure to them more direct advantages than a rigid State system of inspection of weights and measures. Because of the lack of this system small consumers are annually mulcted of thousands and thousands of dollars by reason of short weight and measure in their purchases. The State has gone to great lengths in protecting the quality of the food the people consume; it should now look after the quantity and compel dealers to give to purchasers what the latter pays for.

Miles of oratory have been expended and tons have been consumed in expatiating upon the evils of the "robber tariff," but this form of taxation does not take from the individual a fractional part as much as the short weight artist of commerce. The notorious "Schedule K" of the wool tariff does not exact more than a dollar or two a year from the head of a family, but short weight robs him of a couple ounces to the pound on much of the stuff he buys to eat every day, while scales that weigh short, measures that deceive, and sacks, packages and cans that have shrunk in capacity, daily exact a toll from the consumer that far surpasses everything he pays in the way of taxation for national or State purposes. Nothing would give more direct relief to the toiler than to get all he pays for in the course of a year.

Such a system of State inspection should include meters. The purveyors of public utilities, water, gas and electricity dispense their products by meter, but the companies themselves test the meters; and in most cases supply them. There is no appeal or redress from their readings except complicated and expensive litigation in case a dispute arises as to the accuracy of the meter. There should be State officials to inspect all meters as well as to oversee and direct weights and measure.

Retain the Primary

Whatever the commission that is preparing a new election law does to amend present statutes, it should not abolish the main feature of the primary election law, which makes the nominations by popular vote. This is the most essential feature of popular sovereignty, and to destroy it would be to revert to former conditions of individual political control and bossism. In some quarters there has been a tendency to do away with the secret ballot at the primary and return to the vest pocket ballot in making nominations. This should not be tolerated by the friends of ballot reform, who were largely instrumental in securing the present primary law.

One of the results of the recent elections, when so many voters ignored former party lines on the issue of bossism, will no doubt be a better appreciation of the powers conferred upon them by the present primary law. Comparatively few of the voters realized that they have within their hands the power to regulate all political party control if they saw fit to make use of it. If this agitation and effort had been exercised at the primaries instead of being wasted on an independent party movement, more real political reform would have been effected. Many of the voters now realize this, and are returning to their respective parties resolved to exercise their right of suffrage in the interests of good citizenship in the selection of fit and acceptable candidates. When all the voters do this, the cry of bossism will no longer be a fetch.

Still Keeping Step

The publication elsewhere in this issue of the statement of the Charleroi Savings and Trust company, another banking institution doing business in Charleroi, is further evidence of the thrift and prosperity of this community. Compared with the other banks of the town the Charleroi Savings and Trust company has been in existence a much shorter time, yet it makes a remarkably good showing. With a capital stock of $125,000 its total business aggregates $553,386.28. Its deposits are $392,681.27, while its trust business reaches large proportions. It has undivided profits of $25,765.01 and owns a splendid office building, which with the real estate is valued at $59,331.76.

As the financial institutions of a community are an index of its business standing, these official bank statements show that Charleroi is keeping step with the progress of this section of the State.

Monessen's fire alarm system can't be beat for effect. They have a whistle that half scares a fellow out of his wits, and which alone makes enough excitement for a dozen fires. The only trouble is that the firemen can never tell where the fire is and have to spend a useless lot of time inquiring.

If you can't conscientiously blame every mishap on Penrose, divide up and blame a part on the Black Hand. Washington wants a soldiers' and sailors' memorial hall and thinks it would be nice to have the county build it. Yes, that would be sort of cute.

Dogs and Fleas.

If your dogs are troubled with fleas a very simple way to get rid of the pests is to provide beds of fresh cedar shavings or, better, cedar excelsior in the kennels or wherever the dogs sleep. The scent is not at all unpleasant to the dogs, but is abhorrent to the fleas. When a dog's coat gets thoroughly scented not only do the fleas leave him while asleep, but they will not jump upon him when he is out during the day.

A LEGAL DILEMMA

Tangle of Red Tape In an English Extradition Case.

GETTING AROUND THE LAW.

Only the Quick Wit of the Canadian Police Inspector Kept a Notorious Criminal in Custody When in Reality He Was as Free as the Air.

The manner in which a prisoner extradited to England from a foreign country is treated while on the voyage home depends very much on the detective who has him in charge and also on whether or not there is any suspicion that he may be contemplating violence either to himself or to others.

For instance, in the case of Jabez Balfour, who was taken to England all the way from Buenos Aires, there was a strong suspicion—probably founded—that he contemplated committing suicide. Consequently Inspector Froest, who had him in charge, decided to take no risks that he could possibly avoid.

The regulations do not permit of an unconvicted prisoner being handcuffed on board ship once the vessel has left port, and he must be allowed one hour's exercise on deck each day. These indulgences, if indulgences they may be called, were therefore not withheld from Balfour.

But he got few others. For twenty-three hours out of every twenty-four he was immured in a locked cabin. He was not permitted even to enter the public dining room, his meals being brought to him by Mr. Froest himself after the rest of the passengers had fed. He was, besides, constantly watched and was subjected to a most rigorous search immediately on coming aboard.

His only relaxation was an occasional game of chess with some of the passengers who kindly came to his cabin to play with him by permission and in the presence of his keeper. This seclusion lasted exactly one month and a day, and Balfour afterward declared that it was the most trying experience of a captivity that was destined to continue for nearly twelve years.

One of the longest and in its later stages one of the pleasantest voyages ever undertaken by an unconvicted criminal was that which Charles Hyton Davidson, the notorious forger, made some years back in the custody of Chief Inspector Murray of the Canadian department of justice.

Murray tracked the wanted man to Mexico and secured his extradition to Canada. But then his difficulties began. He could not bring his prisoner to Canada by the direct route through the United States, for immediately Davidson set foot in that country he could have demanded to be released. There was therefore nothing for it but to convey him by way of Jamaica and England and thence back across the Atlantic to Quebec.

On the voyage Murray kept Davidson under close observation, although allowing him considerably more freedom than Froest allowed Balfour. When, however, he had got safely as far as London he was both mortified and astonished at the likelihood of his having had all his trouble for nothing.

The law was, he was told, that a prisoner extradited from a foreign country to a British colony could not be kept in custody in England for longer than twenty-four hours, nor could he be taken as a prisoner on board a British ship sailing from a British port.

Here was a dilemma. Davidson was free as air—he had been known to fly. But Murray was equal to the occasion. "Look here, Davidson," he said, "I've got you safe. There is only the last stage of the journey to complete. If I allow you to travel abroad with me as an ordinary first class passenger will you give me your word to play me no tricks?"

To this proposition Davidson, knowing nothing of the real state of affairs, was naturally quite ready to agree. And so it came to pass that one of the most notorious criminals Canada has ever known came home in state; free, yet not free, a voluntary prisoner, and yet an involuntary one.—Pearson's Weekly.

"I appeal to Mr. Verity, whose truthfulness nobody doubts," said the outraged hostess, with a glitter in her eye. "Mr. Verity, do you think I supply my boarders with bad butter?"

THE "BREAK" IN THE GAME.

Baseball Almost as Much Psychological as Athletic.

Nearly every baseball game is won and lost on one play—a play that comes at the psychological instant. Among the players who do not study psychology the crucial moment is known as "the break," a phenomenon which no one has analyzed and which the players themselves do not understand. Twenty men on the bench are watching closely and intently every move of the pitcher, every swing of his arm. The tide of battle rises, ebbs and then suddenly at the start of some lining something happens. What it is no one outside the psychic sphere of influence ever will understand, but the silent, tight lipped, watchful, alert fellows on the bench see something or feel something, and the mysterious "break" has come.

"One ball!" The players on the bench suddenly stiffen and prepare for action.

"Two balls!" Two players jump for bats and begin swinging them; the coaches, who have yelled only because it was their duty, suddenly begin raving, screaming and pawing the dirt, and the manager, who has appeared half asleep, makes a trumpet of his hands and leads his men, bawling loud orders and wild taunts.

The spectators do not understand anything has happened. Other batters have had two balls called many times, and it looks the same to the spectator who is beyond the mysterious "break" sphere. In two more moments the players' bench is a madhouse, with twenty men shouting, screaming, ordering, moving. "Three balls!" and a madman rushes out to the "deck."

"Four balls!" and the spectators join the players in the demonstration. The madness is spreading. Crack—a base hit, a bunt, a wild throw; another base hit, screams, shouts, imprecations, a roar of frantic applause, a final long fly. The manager reaches for his glove, splits into it and says quietly, "Four runs—we've got 'em."

The "break" is over, and the players' bench is again the quietest part of the grounds. The surge of enthusiasm, confidence and noise subsides, and the game is won.

Baseball is almost as much psychological as athletic. Why one team can beat a stronger one regularly and lose to a weaker with the same regularity, why one batter can hit one pitcher and is helpless before another, why one pitcher is effective against a strong team and at the mercy of an other that cannot bat half as hard, are psychological problems.—American Magazine.

A MISER'S END.

Meanness of M. Vandille and the Way He Hastened His Death.

M. Vandille was chief magistrate at Boulogne and by miserly habits left a fortune of $4,000,000. His usual diet was bread and milk. The bread cost very little, and after eating his loaf at home his habit was to become his own public milk inspector, whom as chief magistrate he had the right to appoint. And so, as he declared, to protect the inhabitants from being imposed upon by an inferior quality of milk he took his walk immediately after eating his loaf and demanded to taste the milk of every salesman he passed, thus saving himself from purchasing any. Misers are generally strong men—they have to be so in order to live a life of privation—but eventually Vandille, like other misers, was seized with illness, and the surgeons had to be called in. In those days they bled their patients. The surgeon asked Vandille half a livre for the operation, but the miser ordered him at once out of his sight and sent for the apothecary. The apothecary refused to cut the price down, so Vandille sent for a poor barber, who undertook to open a vein for three sous a time.

"Aye, but," said this worthy economist, "how often, friend, will it be necessary to bleed me?" "Three times."

"And what quantity of blood do you intend to take each time?" "Eight ounces."

"Well, but why can't you take the whole twenty-four ounces at once? You want to make a job of me, you scoundrel! Here, sir, there are your three sous. Take the twenty-four ounces immediately." The barber was generous to obey. M. Vandille lost the twenty-four ounces of blood and died in a few days, leaving all his vast treasures to the king, whom he made his sole heir.—Standard Magazine.

The Oldest Bridge In Paris.

The Pont Notre Dame is the oldest bridge in Paris. It was first built in 1413 in the reign of Charles VI., but it was carried away, together with the houses which lined it, by ice floes when the frost broke in 1490. A new bridge was begun at once under the direction of Jean Joconde of Verons and was ready for traffic in 1507. On that bridge stood the famous picture shop of Gersaint, which had a sign board specially painted for it by Watteau.—Westminster Gazette.

Entirely Apt.

At first glance the novel's title, "The Rainbow," seemed to be lacking in significance, but as it afterward developed that the hero blushed crimson, was blue with the cold, had his tips grow gray, was seized by a black rage, fell into a brown study, grew green with envy, purple with indignation, livid with fear, yellow with chagrin and scarlet with embarrassment, the title proved to be entirely apt.—Puck.

Mnemonics.

"Why do you always put a pitcher of water and a glass on the table before an orator?"
"That," said the chairman of many reception committees, "is to give him something to do in case he forgets his piece and has to stop and think."—Washington Star.

Anticipated.

Margaret—Did you tell the girls at the tea that secret I confided to you and Josephine? Katharine—No, truly I didn't. Josephine got there first.—Harper's Bazar.

HEED THE WARNING!

Backache is the Signal That Kidney Diseases are Nigh

Who doesn't dread the advanced stages of kidney troubles—Bright disease, diabetes, dropsy and gravel? But today throughout America, there are tens of thousands suffering the torments of hopeless agony just because they failed to heed the first signal, the certain warning of future misery—backache.

Backache means that your kidneys are weak; they may have become inflamed from cold or injury, but in all probability they are stuffed up, clogged with impurities from the blood, for you know, of course, that the blood passes through the kidneys every few minutes and that the kidneys strain the blood of its impurities, which pass out through the urine.

Stop kidney diseases at the start, that's the easiest way, and Thompson's Barossa is the surest remedy. W. F. Hennings sells it, and is willing to guarantee it to stop backache, sideache and sharp shooting pains, and to cure Bright's disease, and end all kidney, liver and bladder trouble or money back.

It is a great maker of pure blood, and a builder of flesh, because it promptly cleans the kidneys, and puts them in such perfect condition that the impurities are thoroughly strained from the blood as it passes through and are promptly eliminated with the urine. Thompson's Barossa is only 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. W. F. Hennings, Graduate in Pharmacy, Corner Fifth and McKean avenue, Charleroi, Pa.

THOS. MARTINDALE,
A Philadelphia business man.

When the Hen Crows.
Willford in his "Nature Secrets" (1908) writes:
"Beasts eating greedily and more than they used to do prenotes foul weather, and all small cattle that seem to rejoice with playing and sporting themselves foreshews rain. Osen and all kinds of heat, if you do at any time observe them to hold up their heads and snuffle in the air or lick their hooves or their bodies against the hair, expect then rainy weather. Asses or mules rubbing often their ears or braying much more than usually they are accustomed presages rain. Hogs graying and running up and down with bay or hither in their mouths foreshews a storm to be near at hand. The little sable beast (called a hen) if much thirsting after blood it argues rain. The cock if he crows in the daytime very much or at sunset or when he is at roost at unusual hours, as at 9 or 10, expect some change of weather and that suddenly, but from fair to foul or the contrary. But when the hen crows good men expect a storm within doors and without."

Lured Into Bathing.
In a railway carriage chat the other day a London medical man told a good story which had come within his own experience. A mother was frequently bringing her child to him for treatment, but the doctor could discover nothing amiss except its need of a good wash. She was certain the infant was suffering from some terrible complaint and begged the doctor to do his best. He prescribed a daily wash with the water in which potatoes had been peeled. Never suspecting that this was merely a ruse to get the child washed, the mother followed the instructions to the letter. Rosy cheeks appeared, and a clean, healthy looking child gladdened the mother's heart. She sounded the doctor's praises everywhere and advised other mothers to test the efficacy of potato water. It never occurred to her that precisely the same result would have followed the daily application of soap and water.

A Spanish Ship Treasure.
In 1762 the largest bulk of treasure ever taken from a ship at sea was brought into London. It was the whole of the cargo of the Spanish ship Hermione, captured on May 21 by H. M. S. Active. The Hermione surrendered to the Active without an action, and the treasure was landed at Portsmouth and conveyed to London in twenty decorated wagons, with British colors over Spanish and an escort party of sailors. The strange procession reached London on Aug. 12, the day on which George IV. was born. On being sold the treasure realized £519,703 1s. 6d., and the share of the officers and men of the Active was as follows: The captain, £65,033 13s. 9d.; three commissioned officers, each £13,004 14s. 1d.; eight warrant officers, each £4,336 3s. 2d.; twenty petty officers, each £1,806 1s. 8d.; 158 seamen, each £485 5s. 4d.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Jury Penalties
Nowadays no penalty is enforced when the twelve men chosen to form the jury are unable to agree upon a verdict. Formerly, however, a refractory juror was committed to prison and the verdict of the eleven was taken. In the reign of King Edward III. the judges decided that a verdict given by a majority was a nullity and recommended that the judges should carry the jury about with them in a cart till they should agree. The old custom that jurors should fast until they had agreed in their verdict prevailed long, but was mercifully relaxed somewhat in Tudor times, and during Queen Elizabeth's reign a banquet was usually given to the jury by the successful party to a suit.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Science and Cheese.
A medical authority kindly assures us that as long as cheese isn't decayed it will not affect the health of the consumer. This is a fact that we have suspected for a considerable time. But how is the ordinary cheese epicure to detect the difference unless he waits for results?

There is cheese so thoroughly disguised in the costume and aroma of decay that its proper standing on the sanitary testing table would puzzle a conjurer.

For instance, there is the brand known as Limburger.

But why pursue the subject?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Circumventing Papa.
"Reginald, I'm awfully sorry, but papa says he doesn't want to see you coming here any more."

"Boodicea, your father's wish is law. He shall not see me again if I can help it. What evenings in the week does he spend downtown?"—Chicago Tribune.

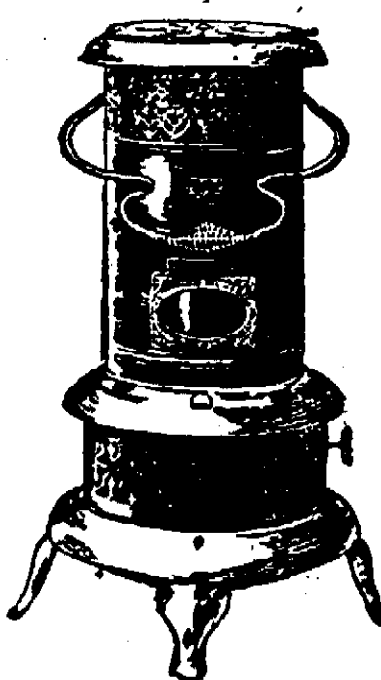

Force of Habit.
"A thousand stars are looking down on you this night," said the poetical young man to the girl.

And she unconsciously put her hands up to arrange the position of her hat.

Official.
"We have had an official warning not to burn much gas this month." "I never heard of such a thing." "Oh, yes; it was last month's bill."—Buffalo Express.

Made It Clear.
Now, Clarice, says the Boston Globe, don't get these things twisted: You eat bivalves, see through binoculars, ride bicycles, wish you had biplanes and marry bipeds.

In Sudden Emergencies

like illness, it is often necessary quickly to raise the temperature of a room. For instance, in those hours between midnight and dawn, when the day temperature has been allowed to drop, if you are called upon to get up, the room is chilly and cold. It takes a long time to start up a furnace or fire and raise the temperature by ordinary means.

You can instantly heat a room to any desired temperature with a

PERFECTION
SMOKELESS
OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

It quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. Has automatic-locking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be cleaned in an instant. It has a cool handle and a damper top.

An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. It has a filler-cap which does not need to be screwed down; it is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for reworking.

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in Japan or nickel. It is strong, durable and well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

MARK TWAIN'S CLOTHES.

The Great Humorist Always Had a Relish For Personal Effect.

At the time of our first meeting Mark Twain was wearing a sealskin coat, with the fur out, in the satisfaction of a caprice or the love of strong effect which he was apt to indulge through life. Fields, the publisher, was present.

I do not know what droll comment was in Fields' mind with respect to this garment, but probably he felt that here was an original who was not to be brought to any Bostonian book in the judgment of his vivid qualities. With his crest of dense red hair and the wide sweep of his flaming mustache Clemens was not discordantly clothed in that sealskin coat, which afterward, in spite of his own warmth in it, sent the cold chills through me when I once accompanied it down Broadway, and shared the immense publicity it won him.

Clemens had always a relish for personal effect, which expressed itself in the white suit of complete serge which he wore in his last years and in the Oxford gown which he put on for every possible occasion and said he would like to wear all the time. That was not vanity in him, but a keen feeling for costume which the severity of our modern tailoring forbids men, though it flatters women to every excess in it.—W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

HIS BLACK EYE.

How He Got It and the Worst That Was Yet to Come.

"Gracious! That's a peach of a black eye. Where did you get it?"

"Got it on the left side of my nose. Where did you think I got it—over the ankle bone?"

"Don't get heated. How did it all happen?"

"That's different. It was all a piece of my confounded luck. I was up on the Blue Cliff road looking at a piece of real estate when along came a coatless and bareheaded fellow running for dear life with a lot of panting pursuers stretching in a long line behind him. I joined in the chase. Being fresh, I rapidly overhauled the fugitive. I had nearly collared him when a big ruffian grabbed me and profanely told me to clear out. I spoke rudely to him and kept on running, and he suddenly reached out a fist like a ham and knocked me into a ditch. And what do you suppose it all was?"

"Give it up."

"It was a rehearsal for a moving picture film, and now my portrait will go all over the country and be seen in thousands of theaters as a bruised and battered butter-in who got just what was coming to him!"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Cow Decided.

A peasant living in the village of Predal, near the Hungarian frontier, lost his cow. About two months ago he happened to be standing at the railroad station watching a train load of cattle about to be sent across the frontier. Suddenly he gave a shout. "That's my cow!" he cried, running toward one of the cars.

The trainmen only laughed at him, and he went before the magistrate. This good man listened to the peasant's story patiently. Then he pronounced this judgment: "The cow shall be taken to the public square of Predal and milked. Then if it goes of its own accord to the plaintiff's stable it shall belong to him."

The order of the court was carried out, and the cow, in spite of its ten months' absence, took without hesitation the lane which led it a few minutes later into the peasant's stable.—Chicago News.

Interesting Reading for Tubercular Invalids

The makers of Eckman's Alternative—the medicine that is curing tuberculosis all over the country—will send direct, a pamphlet and other literature, that every consumptive should read. It tells in their own language the story of those whom Eckman's Alternative has cured. Such straight-from-the-heart evidence as this booklet holds is convincing.

No matter if you have unfortunately spent time and money experimenting with nearly every "cure" under the firmament—investigate Eckman's Alternative. If shown the heart-touching affidavit of a father whose only son was cured of tuberculosis by Eckman's Alternative after all hope had been abandoned, would it not carry some weight with you? Specimen:—718 Cherry St., Phila., Pa. Gentlemen, in July, 1905, I first noticed the conditions that showed I had a hollow cough, hemorrhages, very severe night sweats. My brother recommended Eckman's Alternative. In the Fall of 1905 I began to take it. At this time I am perfectly well and robust. My appetite is good and my weight has increased from 110 to 140 pounds. Not a trace of my old trouble remains. I will gladly express the merits of this medicine to anyone.

(Signed) M. L. GERHARDT. Eckman's Alternative cures Bronchitis, Asthma, Hay Fever, Throat and Lung Affections. Ask for booklet of cured cases and write to the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa. for additional evidence. For Sale by all leading druggists.

W. McVay and N. G. Parke.

FEW DEATHS TO RECORD

Number of Births Greatly Exceed Mortalities in District

There were five times more births than deaths in the Charleroi district, during the month of October, as shown by the report of Registrar of Vital Statistics Dr. Edwin McKay. Forty-five births are recorded in Charleroi, Fallowfield and Twilight. Forty-one of these were in Charleroi, three in Fallowfield township and one in Twilight borough. There were nine deaths recorded, all in Charleroi.

WEST PENN COMPANY DOUBLING CAPACITY AT BIG POWER PLANT

Additions and Improvements Being Made at Connellsville to Increase Producing Facilities

At a meeting of superintendents and solicitors of the West Penn Electric company in Connellsville yesterday, reports were made which showed that the company is enjoying a good season of prosperity. Electricity is replacing gas largely in Washington, Fayette and Westmoreland counties, it is stated. The West Penn Electric company is making extensive improvements at the Connellsville power house, which will double the capacity. This is being done instead of erecting an entirely new plant along the Monongahela valley at this time. It is stated that the new power plant will be located nearabout the West Penn, possibly near Speers, where the company has property.

CHARLEROI MAN BRINGS DOWN A BEAR

After six weeks of a most successful hunting trip in the northern part of Ontario, Canada, Charles S. Van Voorhis, of Charleroi; J. H. Keys and D. T. Hosack of Seneca Hill and P. M. Tombaugh of Washington returned home today, laden with the game they had shot in the northern wilds. The party brought back three of the largest deer that had been seen in that section, averaging from 265 to 300 pounds each. One freak deer was shot being a beautiful white one. This was held by the Canadian game officials, and may be recovered later. Two moose were shot and Van Voorhis shot an immense black bear weighing about 450 pounds. The party had some rich experiences. They were located during the most of their trip about 300 miles south of James Bay. They camped out and canoed or tramped from place to place. When they left there was 14 inches of snow on the ground.

DIVIDENDS DECLARED

Uniontown Bank Pays
Average of 22 Per Cent Annually

LEADS ON HONOR ROLL

A semi-annual dividend of 11 per cent has been declared by the directors of the First National Bank of Uniontown, which is known as J. V. Thompson's bank. At the time of the declaring of the dividend the sum of $3,000 was added to the surplus fund which now reaches the grand total of $1,400,000 on a capital stock of $100,000. The 11 per cent semi-annual is not unusual. The Uniontown First National bank leads the roll of honor among the National banks of the United States and by its wise and judicious banking business is able from year to year to declare the 22 per cent dividend, and each time make a handsome addition to the surplus.

MANY NEW HOPPER CARS ON DIVISION

Railroad Handling Much of Coal Trade Along the Valley

This week a number of new steel hopper cars, just put out by the car manufacturers at McKees Rocks and other places, are being sent up the division for loading with coal and coke and consigned to various markets. Apparently the close of the lake trade season has not seriously affected railroad shipments of coal, but this is owing to the fact that many of the mines shipping by river have by reason of the low water been compelled to get their coal out by rail.

Pupils of the Charleroi high school and the eighth grade who went to Monessen yesterday morning to view the tuberculosis exhibit there and to bear the lecture given in connection, have been complimented upon their behavior on the trip. It would be expected that there would be more or less exuberance of spirits among them in escaping from irksome school pursuits, but such was not manifested. Supt. Pentz, who went along, is mighty proud of his eighth grade and high school pupils.

UNUSUAL FEATURES IN CASE

One Foreigner Charges
Another With Changing Checks

WHO LOADED THE COAL?

A case that had some unusual features was tried before Judge Taylor yesterday afternoon. The defendant was George Suberz, a miner at the Vesta No. 4 mine, near California. The private prosecutor was John Casbo. The defendant was charged with changing a coal check, a frequent crime among miners. In this case though the defendant admitted that he took the private prosecutor's check off a car and put his own on, he said that the car load of coal was his and he was entitled to put his check on the car.

It appeared from the testimony that the defendant had shot down the coal, and that the private prosecutor had gone into the room and loaded a car of coal from the coal shot down by the defendant. The defendant coming the next morning and finding the car loaded, the private prosecutor's check on it, took the check off, threw it away and put his own on. He was acquitted but ordered to pay costs.

Socialists Poll Surprisingly Large Vote and Prohibitionists Lose

The official vote for Washington county last Tuesday provides some interesting reading. Gibbonay, the candidate for Lieutenant Governor on the Keystone ticket, carried the county over Reynolds by a plurality of 159, but Henry Houck, the Republican candidate for Secretary of Internal Affairs, with a plurality over Casey, the Keystoner, of 295 votes, had the largest plurality of any candidate in this county.

Charles Mathews, the winner in the Congressional contest, carried the county over Wilson by 333 votes and Anderson's plurality over Judson in his county was 711. Bentley's plurality over Post was 287.

Jerome Van Voorhis of near Charleroi proved a favorite among the Prohibition voters, polling 463 votes and leading that party. One surprise was the number of votes cast for the Socialist candidate. Eldridge a candidate for assembly, led his ticket with a total of 931 votes. The Socialists showed up much stronger than the Prohibitionists, those votes being somewhat scattered.

Weights and Measures
In view of the talk during the recent campaign of legislation for the benefit of working people, none would secure to them more direct advantages than a rigid State system of inspection of weights and measures.

Because of the lack of this system small consumers are annually mulcted of thousands and thousands of dollars by reason of short weight and measure in their purchases.

The State has gone to great lengths in protecting the quality of the food the people consume; it should now look after the quantity and compel dealers to give to purchasers what the latter pays for.

Miles of oratory have been expended and tons have been consumed in expatiating upon the evils of the "robber tariff," but this form of taxation does not take from the individual a fractional part as much as the short weight artist of commerce.

The notorious "Schedule K" of the wool tariff does not exact more than a dollar or two a year from the head of a family, but short weight robs him of a couple ounces to the pound on much of the stuff he buys to eat every day.

While scales that weigh short, measures that deceive, and sacks, packages and cans that have shrunk in capacity, daily exact a toll from the consumer that far surpasses everything he pays in the way of taxation for national or State purposes.

Nothing would give more direct relief to the toiler than to get all his pays for in the course of a year.

Such a system of State inspection should include meters. The purveyors of public utilities, water, gas and electricity dispense their products by meter, but the companies themselves test the meters and in most cases supply them. There is no appeal or redress from their readings except complicated and expensive litigation in case a dispute arises as to the accuracy of the meter.

There should be State officials to inspect all meters as well as to oversee and direct weights and measure.

Retain the Primary
Whatever the commission that is preparing new election laws to amend present statutes, it should not abolish the main feature of the primary election law, which makes the nominations by popular vote.

This is the most essential feature of popular sovereignty, and to destroy it would be to revert to former conditions of individual political control and bossism.

In some quarters there has been a tendency to do away with the secret ballot at the primary and return to the vest pocket ballot in making nominations.

This should not be tolerated by the friends of ballot reform, who were largely instrumental in securing the present primary law.

One of the results of the recent elections, when so many voters ignored former party lines on the issue of bossism, will no doubt be a better appreciation of the powers conferred upon them by the present primary law.

Comparatively few of the voters realized that they have within their hands the power to regulate all political party control if they saw fit to make use of it.

If this agitation and effort had been exercised at the primaries instead of being wasted on an independent party movement, more real political reform would have been effected.

Many of the voters now realize this, and are returning to their respective parties resolved to exercise their right of suffrage in the interests of good citizenship in the selection of fit and acceptable candidates.

When all the voters do this, the evil of bossism will no longer be a fetish.

Still Keeping Step
The publication elsewhere in this issue of the statement of the Charleroi Savings and Trust company, another banking institution doing business in Charleroi, is further evidence of the thrift and prosperity of this community.

Compared with the other banks of the town the Charleroi Savings and Trust company has been in existence a much shorter time, yet it makes a remarkably good showing.

With a capital stock of $125,000 its total business aggregates $553,386.28. Its deposits are $392,551.27, while its trust business reaches large proportions.

It has undivided profits of $25,765.01 and owns a splendid office building which with the real estate is valued at $59,331.76.

As the financial institutions of a community are an index of its business standing, these official bank statements show that Charleroi is keeping step with the progress of this section of the State.

Dogs and Fleas.
If your dogs are troubled with fleas a very simple way to get rid of the pests is to provide beds of fresh cedar shavings or, better, cedar excelsior in the kennels or wherever the dogs sleep.

The scent is not at all unpleasant to the dogs, but is abhorrent to the fleas. When a dog's coat gets thoroughly scented not only do the fleas leave him while asleep, but they will not jump upon him when he is out during the day.

A LEGAL DILEMMA

Tangle of Red Tape In an English Extradition Case.

GETTING AROUND THE LAW.

Only the Quick Wit of the Canadian Police Inspector Kept a Notorious Criminal In Custody When in Reality He Was as Free as the Air.

The manner in which a prisoner extradited to England from a foreign country is treated while on the voyage home depends very much on the detective who has him in charge and also on whether or not there is any suspicion that he may be contemplating violence either to himself or to others.

For instance, in the case of Jaber Balfour, who was taken to England all the way from Buenos Aires there was a strong suspicion—probably ill-founded—that he contemplated committing suicide. Consequently Inspector Froest, who had him in charge, decided to take no risks that he could possibly avoid.

The regulations do not permit of an uncontrolled prisoner being handcuffed on board ship once the vessel has left port, and he must be allowed one hour's exercise on deck each day. These indulgences, if indulgences they may be called, were therefore not withheld from Balfour.

But he got few others. For twenty-three hours out of every twenty-four he was immured in a locked cabin. He was not permitted even to enter the public dining room, his meals being brought to him by Mr. Froest himself after the rest of the prisoners had finished. He was, besides, constantly watched and was subjected to a most rigorous search immediately on coming aboard.

His only relaxation was in one of the state of chess with some of the passengers who kindly came to his cabin to play with him by permission and in the presence of his keeper. This sea imprisonment lasted exactly one month and a day and Balfour afterward declared that it was the most trying experience of a captivity that was destined to continue for nearly twelve years.

One of the longest and in its later stages one of the pleasantest voyages ever undertaken by an untried criminal was that which Charles Davidson, the notorious forger, made some years back in the custody of Chief Inspector Murray of the Canadian department of justice.

Murray tracked the wanted man to Mexico and secured his extradition to Canada. But then his difficulties began. He could not bring his prisoner to Canada by the direct route through the United States, for immediately Davidson set foot in that country he could have demanded to be released. There was therefore nothing for it but to convey him by way of Jamaica and England and thence back across the Atlantic to Quebec.

On the voyage Murray kept Davidson under close observation, although allowing him considerably more freedom than Froest allowed Balfour. When, however, he had got safely as far as London he was mortified and astonished at the likelihood of his having had all his trouble for nothing.

The law was, he was told, that a prisoner extradited from a foreign country to a British colony could not be kept in custody in England for longer than twenty-four hours, nor could he be taken as a prisoner on board a British ship sailing from a British port.

Here was a dilemma. Davidson was free as air—had he only known it. But Murray was equal to the occasion. "Look here, Davidson," he said, "I've got you safe. There is only the last stage of the journey to complete. If I allow you to travel alone with me as an ordinary first class passenger will you give me your word to play me no tricks?"

To this proposition Davidson, knowing nothing of the real state of affairs, was naturally quite ready to agree. And so it came to pass that one of the most notorious criminals Canada has ever known came home in state; free, yet not free, a voluntary prisoner, and yet an involuntary one.—Pearson's Weekly.

The Oldest Bridge In Paris.
The Pont Notre Dame is the oldest bridge in Paris. It was first built in 1413 in the reign of Charles VI., but it was carried away, together with the houses which lined it, by ice flow when the frost broke in 1499. A new bridge was begun at once under the direction of Jean Jocoande of Verone and was ready for traffic in 1507. On that bridge stood the famous picture shop of Gersaint, which had a sign board specially painted for it by Watteau.—Westminster Gazette.

THE "BREAK" IN THE GAME.

Baseball Almost as Much Psychological as Athletic.

Nearly every baseball game is won and lost on one play—a play that comes at the psychological instant. Among the players who do not study psychology the crucial moment is known as "the break"—a phenomenon which no one has analyzed and which the players themselves do not understand. Twenty men on the bench are watching closely and intently every move of the pitcher, every swing of his arm. The tide of battle rises, ebbs and then suddenly at the start of some inning something happens. What it is no one outside the psychic sphere of influence ever will understand but the silent, tight lipped, watchful, alert fellows on the bench see something or feel something, and the mysterious "break" has come.

"One ball!" The players on the bench suddenly stiffen and prepare for action. "Two balls!" Two players jump for bats and begin swinging them; the roachers, who have yelled only because it was their duty, suddenly begin raving screaming and pawing the dirt, and the manager who has appeared half asleep makes a trumpet of his hands and leads his men, bawling loud orders and wild taunts.

Nothing has happened. Other batters have had two balls called many times and it looks the same to the spectator who is beyond the mysterious "break" sphere. In two more moments the players' bench is a madhouse, with twenty men shouting, screaming, ordering moving. "Three balls!" and a madman rushes out to the "deck."

"Four balls!" and the spectators join the players in the demonstration. The madness is spreading. Crack—a base hit, a bunt a wild throw, another base hit, screams, shouts, hurrahs, a roar of frantic applause a long cry. The manager reaches for his glove, splits into it and says "letty." "Four runs—we've got 'em!" the "break" is over, and the players' bench is again the quietest part of the grounds. The surge of enthusiasm, confidence and noise subsides and the game is won.

Baseball is almost as much psychological as athletic. Why one team can beat a stronger one regularly and lose to a weaker with the same regularity why one batter can hit one pitcher and is helpless before another why one pitcher is effective against a strong team and at the mercy of another that cannot bat half as hard are psychological problems.—American Magazine.

A MISER'S END.
Meanness of M. Vandille and the Way He Hastened His Death.

M. Vandille was chief magistrate at Boulogne and by miserly habits left a fortune of $4,000,000. His usual diet was bread and milk. The bread cost very little, and after eating his loaf at home his habit was to become his own public milk inspector when as chief magistrate he had the right to appoint and so as he decided to protect the inhabitants from being imposed upon by an inferior quality of milk he took his walk immediately after eating his loaf and demanded to taste the milk of every salesman he passed thus saving himself from purchasing any. Misers are generally strong men. They have no use so in order to live a life of privacy—but eventually Vandille, like other misers, was seized with illness, and the surgeons had to be called in. In those days they bled their patients. The surgeon asked Vandille half a livre for the operation, but the millionaire ordered him at once out of his sight and sent for the apothecary. The apothecary refused to cut the price down, so Vandille sent for a poor barber, who undertook to open a vein for three sous a time.

"Aye, but," said this worthy economist, "how often, friend, will it be necessary to bleed me?" "Three times."

"And what quantity of blood do you intend to take each time?" "Eight ounces."

"Well, but why can't you take the whole twenty-four ounces at once? You want to make a job of me, you scoundrel! Here, sir, there are your three sous. Take the twenty-four ounces immediately." The barber was generous to obey. M. Vandille lost the twenty-four ounces of blood and died in a few days, leaving all his vast treasures to the king, whom he made his sole heir.—Grand Magazine.

At first glance the novel's title, "The Rainbow," seemed to be lacking in significance, but as it afterward developed that the hero blushed crimson, was blue with the cold, had his lips grow gray, was seized by a black rage, fell into a brown study, grew green with envy, purple with indignation, livid with fear, yellow with chagrin and scarlet with embarrassment, the title proved to be entirely apt.—Puck.

NEED THE WARNING!
Backache is the Signal That Kidney Diseases are Nigh

Who doesn't dread the advanced stages of kidney troubles—Bright disease, diabetes, dropsy and gravel? But today throughout America, there are tens of thousands suffering the torments of hopeless agony just because they failed to heed the first signal, the certain warning of future misery—backache.

Backache means that your kidneys are weak; they may have become inflamed from cold or injury, but in all probability they are stuffed up, clogged with impurities from the blood, for you know, of course, that the blood passes through the kidneys every few minutes and that the kidneys strain the blood of its impurities, which pass out through the urine.

Stop kidney diseases at the start, that's the easiest way, and Thompson's Barosma is the surest remedy. W. F. Hennings sells it, and is willing to guarantee it to stop backache, sideache and sharp shooting pains, and to cure Bright's disease, and all kidney, liver and bladder trouble or money back.

It is a great maker of pure blood, and a builder of flesh, because it promptly cleans the kidneys, and puts them in such perfect condition that the impurities are thoroughly strained from the blood as it passes through and are promptly eliminated with the urine. Thompson's Barosma is only 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle. W. F. Hennings, Graduate in Pharmacy, Corner Fifth and McKean avenue, Charleroi, Pa.

When the Hen Crows.
Willard in his "Nature Secrets" (1068) writes:
"Beasts eating greedily and more than they used to do prenotes foul weather, and all small cattle that seem to rejoice with playing and sporting themselves foreshews rain. Cows and all kinds of neat, if you go at any time observe them to hold up their heads and snuffle in the air or lick their hooves or their bodies against the hair, expect then rainy weather. Asses or mules rubbing often their ears or braying much more than usually they are accustomed presages rain. Hogs prying and running up and down with hay or litter in their mouths foreshews a storm to be near at hand. The little sable beast (called a hen) if much thirsting after blood it argues rain. The cock if he crows in the daytime very much or at sunseting or when he is at roost at unusual hours, as at 9 or 10, expect some change of weather and that suddenly, but from fair to foul or the contrary. But when the hen crows good men expect a storm within doors and without."

Lured Into Bathing.
In a railway carriage chat the other day a London medical man told a good story which had come within his own experience. A mother was frequently bringing her child to him for treatment, but the doctor could discover nothing amiss except its need of a good wash. She was certain the infant was suffering from some terrible complaint and begged the doctor to do his best. He prescribed a daily wash with the water in which potatoes had been peeled. Never suspecting that this was merely a ruse to get the child washed, the mother followed the instructions to the letter. Rosy cheeks appeared, and a clean, healthy looking child gladdened the mother's heart. She sounded the doctor's praises everywhere and advised other mothers to test the efficacy of potato water. It never occurred to her that precisely the same result would have followed the daily application of soap and water.

A Spanish Ship Treasure.
In 1762 the largest bulk of treasure ever taken from a ship at sea was brought into London. It was the whole of the cargo of the Spanish ship Hermione, captured on May 21 by H. M. S. Active. The Hermione surrendered to the Active without an action, and the treasure was landed at Portsmouth and conveyed to London in twenty decorated wagons, with British colors over Spanish and an escort party of sailors. The strange procession reached London on Aug. 12, the day on which George IV. was born. On being sold the treasure realized $519,705 1s. 6d., and the share of the officers and men of the Active was as follows: The captain, $85,053 13s. 9d.; three commissioned officers, each $13,004 14s. 1d.; eight warrant officers, each $4,386 3s. 2d.; twenty petty officers, each $1,806 1s. 8d.; 158 seamen, each $485 5s. 4d.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Jury Penalties.
Nowadays no penalty is enforced when the twelve men chosen to form the jury are unable to agree upon a verdict. Formerly, however, a refractory jurymen was committed to prison and the verdict of the eleven was taken. In the reign of King Edward III. the judges decided that a verdict given by a majority was a nullity and recommended that the judges should carry the jury about with them in a cart till they should agree. The old custom that jurors should fast until they had agreed in their verdict prevailed long, but was mercifully relaxed somewhat in Tudor times, and during Queen Elizabeth's reign a banquet was usually given to the jury by the successful party to a suit.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Science and Cheese.
A medical authority kindly assures us that as long as cheese isn't decayed it will not affect the health of the consumer. This is a fact that we have suspected for a considerable time. But how is the ordinary cheese epicure to detect the difference unless he waits for results?
There is cheese so thoroughly disguised in the costume and aroma of decay that its proper standing on the sanitary testing table would puzzle a conjurer.
For instance, there is the brand known as Limburger.
But why pursue the subject?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

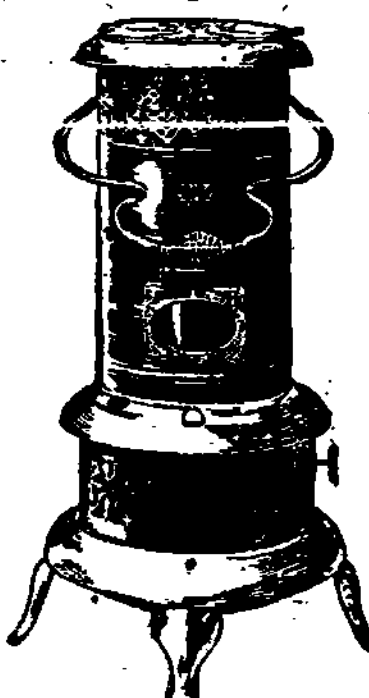

Circumventing Papa.
"Reginald, I'm awfully sorry, but papa says he doesn't want to see you coming here any more."
"Boo-dicea, your father's wish is law. He shall not see me again if I can help it. What evenings in the week does he spend downtown?"—Chicago Tribune.

Force of Habit.
"A thousand stars are looking down on you this night," said the poetical young man to the girl.
And she unconsciously put her hands up to arrange the position of her hat.

Official.
"We have had an official warning not to burn much gas this month." "I never heard of such a thing."
"Oh, yes; it was last month's bill."—Buffalo Express.

Made It Clear.
Now, Clarice, says the Boston Globe, don't get these things twisted: You eat bivalves, see through binoculars, ride bicycles, wish you had biplanes and marry bipeds.

In Sudden Emergencies

like illness, it is often necessary quickly to raise the temperature of a room. For instance, in those hours between midnight and dawn, when the day temperature has been allowed to drop, if you are called upon to get up, the room is chilly and cold. It takes a long time to start up a furnace or fire and raise the temperature by ordinary means.

You can instantly heat a room to any desired temperature with a

PERFECTION SMOKELESS OIL HEATER

Absolutely smokeless and odorless

It quickly gives heat, and with one filling of the font burns steadily for nine hours, without smoke or smell. Has automatic-locking flame spreader which prevents the wick from being turned high enough to smoke, and is easy to remove and drop back, so the wick can be cleaned in an instant. It has a cool handle and a damper top.

An indicator always shows the amount of oil in the font. It has a filler-cap which does not need to be screwed down; it is put in like a cork in a bottle, and is attached to the font by a chain.

The burner body or gallery cannot become wedged, because of a new device in construction, and consequently it can always be easily unscrewed in an instant for reworking.

The Perfection Oil Heater is finished in Japan or nickel. It is strong, durable and well made, built for service, yet light and ornamental.

Interesting Reading for Tubercular Invalids

The makers of Eckman's Alternative--the medicine that is curing tuberculosis--all over the country--will send direct, a pamphlet and other literature, that every consumptive should read. It tells in their own language the story of those whom Eckman's Alternative has cured. Such straight-from-the-heart evidence as this booklet holds is convincing. No matter if you have unfortunately spent time and money experimenting with nearly every "cure" under the firmament--investigate Eckman's Alternative. It shows the heart-touching affidavit of a father whose only son was cured of tuberculosis by Eckman's Alternative after all hope had been abandoned. Would it not carry some weight with you? Specimen--718 Cherry St., Phila., Pa. Gentlemen--In July, 1905, I suffered the conditions that showed I had consumption. I lost weight rapidly; had a hollow cough, hemorrhages and very severe night sweats. My brother recommended Eckman's Alternative. In the Fall of 1905 I began to take it. At this time I am perfectly well and robust. My appetite is good and my weight has increased from 110 to 140 pounds. Not a trace of my old trouble remains. I will gladly express the merits of this medicine to anyone.

(Signed) AL. L. GERHARDT.

MARK TWAIN'S CLOTHES.

The Great Humorist Always Had a Relish For Personal Effect.

At the time of our first meeting Mark Twain was wearing a sealskin coat, with the fur out, in the satisfaction of a caprice or the love of strong effect which he was apt to indulge through life. Fields, the publisher, was present.

I do not know what droll comment was in Fields' mind with respect to this garment, but probably he felt that here was an original who was not to be brought to any Bostonian book in the judgment of his vivid qualities. With his crest of dense red hair and the wide sweep of his flaming mustache Clemens was not discordantly clothed in that sealskin coat, which afterward, in spite of his own warmth in it, sent the cold chills through me when I once accompanied him down Broadway, and shared the immense publicity it won him.

Clemens had always a relish for personal effect, which expressed itself in the white suit of complete serge which he wore in his last years and in the Oxford gown which he put on for every possible occasion and said he would like to wear all the time. That was not vanity in him, but a keen feeling for costume which the severity of our modern tailoring forbids men, though it flatters women to every excess in it.--W. D. Howells in Harper's Magazine.

HIS BLACK EYE.

How He Got It, and the Worst That Was Yet to Come.

"Gracious! That's a peach of a black eye. Where did you get it?"
"Got it on the left side of my nose. Where did you think I got it--over the ankle bone?"

"Don't get heated. How did it all happen?"

"That's different. It was all a piece of my confounded luck. I was up on the Blue Cliff road looking at a piece of real estate when along came a careless and bareheaded fellow running for dear life with a lot of panting pursuers stretching in a long line behind him. I joined in the chase. Being fresh, I rapidly overhauled the fugitive. I had nearly collared him when a big ruffian grabbed me and profanely told me to clear out. I spoke rudely to him and kept on running, and he suddenly reached out a fist like a hammer and knocked me into a ditch. And what do you suppose it all was?"

"Give it up."
"It was a rehearsal for a moving picture film, and now my portrait will go all over the country and be seen in thousands of theaters as a bruised and battered butter-in who got just what was coming to him"--Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The Cow Decided.

A peasant living in the village of Predcal, near the Hungarian frontier, lost his cow. About two months ago he happened to be standing at the railroad station watching a train load of cattle about to be sent across the frontier. Suddenly he gave a shout. "That's my cow!" he cried, running toward one of the cars.

The trainmen only laughed at him, and he went before the magistrate. This good man listened to the peasant's story patiently. Then he pronounced this judgment: "The cow shall be taken to the public square of Predcal and milked. Then if it goes of its own accord to the plaintiff's stable it shall belong to him."

The order of the court was carried out, and the cow, in spite of its ten months' absence, took without hesitation the lane which led it a few minutes later into the peasant's stable.--Chicago News.

Puzzled the Packer.
The first organized work of women in a relief corps was led by Florence Nightingale in the Crimean war of 1855. So unaccustomed were people to that service at the time that it called out some curious comment. Writing of "Chinese" Gordon, Dr. Butler tells in his book, "Ten Great and Good Men," how the boys at Cambridge met the call upon them for hospital stores.

One day a letter came suddenly from the war office telling us that any warm clothes for the invalids at Scutari would be prized by Miss Florence Nightingale. At once in every college a committee was extemporized of leading undergraduates, charged to collect presents of flannel jackets, trousers, "blazers," rugs, greatcoats, furs, even sealskins.

In a few hours box after box was filled with these treasures, and all the boxes were kindly and gratuitously packed for us by the leading upholsterer of the town, his foreman simply remarking to me in a tone which General Gordon would have enjoyed: "A nice consignment for a lady, sir."

Cause of Twilight.
Twilight is a phenomenon caused by atmospheric refraction. When the sun gets below the horizon we are not immediately plunged into the darkness of night. Although the sun is below our horizon, rays of solar light are bent or refracted by the terrestrial atmosphere and continue to furnish some slight illumination. The process continues with diminishing intensity until the sun is so far below the horizon that the refracting power of the atmosphere is no longer able to bend the rays enough to produce a visible effect. The time after sunset that the sun reaches such a position varies with the latitude of the place. There is less twilight at the tropic zone than at the temperate or frigid zone. This is due to less time taken by the sun's rays to pass through the atmosphere, at the tropic zone the sun's rays being perpendicular and at the temperate and frigid zones oblique.—New York American.

With a Grain of Salt.
The earliest record of the saying "with a grain of salt" dates back to the year 63 B. C., when the great Pompey entered the palace of Mithridates and discovered among his private papers the description of an antidote against poisons of all sorts, which was composed of pounded herbs. These, according to the recipe, were to be taken with a grain of salt. Whether this was meant seriously or as a warning sarcasm is not known, but thenceforth it became the custom to say that doubtful preparations should be taken with a grain of salt. From this the meaning got transferred to sayings of doubtful truth. "Attic salt" was a Greek synonym for wit or penetration, and the Latin word "sal" had somewhat of the same meaning. It is thus easy to see how the saying "cum grano salis" could have come to mean the necessity of accepting doubtful or suspicious statements "with a grain of salt."

Molokai and the Lepers.
The general idea of the leper settlement on the island of Molokai is wrong, says a writer in Harper's Weekly. Instead of the entire island being used for the leper colony the settlement comprises only eight square miles out of a total area of 261 square miles. It occupies a tongue of land on the northern side of Molokai. The north, east and west shores of this tiny spit are washed by the Pacific, while on the south side rise precipitous cliffs of from 1,800 to 4,000 feet, which make the isolation seem even more hopeless than the beautiful deep blue waters of the sea ever could. The most difficult and dangerous trail, constantly manned by government guards, foils escape, if it were ever contemplated, by the land side.

Stupid Husband of a Noted Singer.
Catalani's husband, a handsome Frenchman, was even more unintellectual than his wife—he was stupid. Once, having found the pitch of the piano too high, she said after the rehearsal to her husband: "The piano is too high. Will you see that it is made lower before the concert?" When the evening came Catalani was annoyed to find that the piano had not been altered. Her husband sent for the carpenter, who declared that he had sawed off two inches from each leg, as he had been ordered to do. "Surely it can't be too high now, my dear," said the stupid husband soothingly.

Through the Cracks.
When the celebrated divine Edward Irving was on a preaching tour in Scotland two Dumfries men of decided opinions went to hear him. When they left the hall one said to the other: "Well, Willie, what do you think?" "Oh," said the other contemptuously, "the man's cracked!" The first speaker laid a quiet hand on his shoulder. "Will," said he, "you'll often see a light peeping through a crack."

A Poor Player.
Griggs—So you got home from the club at midnight. Well, I suppose you told wife you had to work late at the office. Played upon her sympathies, eh? Briggs—Well—er—yes, but 'tater her sympathies were out of tune or I'm a damned poor instrumentalist.—Boston Transcript

Good and Sufficient Reason.
Editor—But, my good fellow, why do you bring this poem to me? Impecunious One—Well, sir, because I hadn't a stamp, sir.—London Tattler.

Opportunity seldom comes with a letter of introduction.

When the Hen Crows.
Winifred in his "Nature Secrets" (1853) writes: "Beasts eating greedily and more than they used to do prelates foul weather, and all small cattle that seem to rejoice with playing and snorting themselves for showers rain. Oxen and all kinds of beast, if you do at any time observe them to hold up their heads and snuffle in the air or lick their hooves or their bodies against the hair, expect then rainy weather. Asses or mules rubbing often their ears or braying much more than usual, they are accustomed pressages rain. Hogs crying and running up and down with bay or litter in their mouths forebodes a storm to be near at hand. The little sable beast (quail) a hen if much thirsting after blood it argues rain. The cock if he crows in the daytime very much or at sunset or when he is at roost at unusual hours, as at 9 or 10, expect some change of weather and that suddenly, but from fair to foul or the contrary. But when the hen crows good men expect a storm within doors and without."

Lured Into Bathing.
In a railway carriage that the other day a London medical man told a good story which had come within his own experience. A mother was frequently bringing her child to him for treatment, but the doctor could discover nothing amiss except its need of a good wash. She was certain the infant was suffering from some terrible complaint and begged the doctor to do his best. He prescribed a daily wash with the water in which potatoes had been peeled. Never suspecting that this was merely a ruse to get the child washed, the mother followed the instructions to the letter. Rosy cheeks appeared, and a clean, healthy looking child gladdened the mother's heart. She sounded the doctor's praises everywhere and advised other mothers to test the efficacy of potato water. It never occurred to her that precisely the same result would have followed the daily application of soap and water.

A Spanish Ship Treasure.
In 1762 the largest bulk of treasure ever taken from a ship at sea was brought into London. It was the whole of the cargo of the Spanish ship Hermione, captured on May 21 by H. M. S. Active. The Hermione surrendered to the Active without an action, and the treasure was landed at Portsmouth and conveyed to London in twenty decorated wagons, with British colors over Spanish and an escort party of sailors. The strange procession reached London on Aug. 12, the day on which George IV. was born. On being sold the treasure realized £519,705 1s. 6d., and the share of the officers and men of the Active was as follows: The captain, £65,053 13s. 9d.; three commissioned officers, each £13,004 14s. 1d.; eight warrant officers, each £1,336 3s. 2d.; twenty petty officers, each £1,806 1s. 8d.; 158 seamen, each £483 5s. 4d.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Jury Penalties.
Nowadays no penalty is enforced when the twelve men chosen to form the jury are unable to agree upon a verdict. Formerly, however, a refractory juror was committed to prison and the verdict of the eleven was taken. In the reign of King Edward III. the judges decided that a verdict given by a majority was a nullity and recommended that the judges should carry the jury about with them in a cart till they should agree. The old custom that jurors should fast until they had agreed in their verdict prevailed long, but was mercifully relaxed somewhat in Tudor times, and during Queen Elizabeth's reign a banquet was usually given to the jury by the successful party to a suit.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Science and Cheese.
A medical authority kindly assures us that as long as cheese isn't decayed it will not affect the health of the consumer. This is a fact that we have suspected for a considerable time. But how is the ordinary cheese epicure to detect the difference unless he waits for results?

There is cheese so thoroughly disguised in the costume and aroma of decay that its proper standing on the sanitary testing table would puzzle a confuter.

For instance, there is the brand known as Limburger.

But why pursue the subject?—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Circumventing Papa.
"Reginald, I'm awfully sorry, but papa says he doesn't want to see you coming here any more."
"Daddey, your father's wish is law. He shall not see me again if I can help it. What evenings in the week does he spend downtown?"—Chicago Tribune.

Force of Habit.
"A thousand stars are looking down on you this night," said the poetical young man to the girl.
And she unconsciously put her hands up to arrange the position of her hat.

Official.
"We have had an official warning not to burn much gas this month."
"I never heard of such a thing."
"Oh, yes; it was last month's bill!"—Buffalo Express.

Made It Clear.
Now, Clarice, says the Boston Globe, don't get these things twisted: You eat bivalves, see through binoculars, ride bicycles, wish you had biceps and marry bleds.

PERSISTENT BEGGARS.

The More Egyptian Mendicants Get the More They Demand

In Egypt one should never give him sheesh except for actual services rendered. Resist calmly but firmly every attempt at extortion. Never pay till the complaint has been made to the authorities after you have paid a little more than the bargain called for to turn a deaf ear to the protestations and entreaties that always follow. Bear in mind that the more bakheesh you give the more clamorous becomes the applicant. Real thanks and gratitude must not be expected for gifts.

A friend of mine once broke one of these rules just to see what would happen. As we passed through a little mud village twenty miles from Cairo he gave a sturdy beggar a millem (half a cent). This beggar, accompanied by others, followed us to the edge of the village asking for more. My friend then gave him a plaster (cents).

They followed us a hundred yards or so and were more persistent than before. When they showed a disposition to go back he gave them 5 piasters. They followed us half a mile and became very clamorous. I was afraid we should get into trouble and wanted him to stop it but when they began to lag he gave them 20 piasters.

experiment might have ended seriously had we not met a company of travelers with a dragoman who sent the beggars about their business. This may help you to understand Egyptian character.—Christian Herald

LAPLAND BABIES.

For Their First Few Months They Live in Wicker Baskets.

Little Laplanders spend the first few months of their existence in baskets of wickerwork provided at the top with a conical framework too close for the baby to fall through and yet giving the infant plenty of light and air.

Before commencing her work for the day the Lapp mother places her child in the basket and hangs it on the limb of some nearby tree, occupation being found for the little one by stringing toys under a cord passed across the top of the basket.

Thus provided the child spends the entire day in the open and yet at the same time is guarded from the troubles and dangers of outdoor child life in other countries.

The basket idea curiously parallels the Indian idea of strapping the papoose into a carrying case, but the Lapp baby has the advantage over its Indian fellow in that its limbs are unconfined and a certain amount of liberty of movement is afforded.

The child is carried from place to place in the same basket, the cord by which it is attached to a tree being slung over the shoulder.

Fossils and Gold.

In Alaska the bones and often the entire bodies of extinct animals, such as the mammoth, the mastodon, the reindeer and the bison, are found more abundantly in layers of soil directly above gold-bearing gravels. So intimate is this association between fossil animal remains and auriferous deposits that one scientist who has explored Alaska says fossils serve prospectors as indexes of the metallic richness of the soil. In ancient times both gold and the bones of animals were deposited at the bottoms of valleys by action of rivers and smaller streams, many of which have now disappeared, consequently the appearance of fossils is, it is claimed, an almost certain indication that gold will be found in the neighborhood. The cabins of many miners are ornamented with huge tusks and antlers unearthed in the diggings.—New York Tribune.

Definite Instructions

Telegraphers have their troubles. Like the rest of mankind, and the men who follow the dots and dashes tell stories based upon actual happenings that almost test the credulity of the hearer. A man now in charge of a Postal office is responsible for the following which occurred to him when he was holding down a key in an obscure place in the suburbs.

"A farmer came in one day and handed me a message to 'Mrs. Smith, New York city.' I asked for the address, and my patron, looking at me with a pitying smile, replied:

"'Sonny, you just send it to Mrs. Smith, who keeps a boarding house in New York. Don't let any one know you don't know where her place is.'"

Philadelphia Times.

Followed Instructions.

She was a woman of very punctilious notions, and when she came into his room to kiss her little boy good night and found that he had not said his prayers she was very much shocked. "How was it Willie," she asked, "that you neglected such an important duty?"

"You see, mamma," he replied, "when dad sent me in a hurry to bed he said there mustn't be another word out of me tonight."—Lippincott's.

AFRAID OF MOONLIGHT.

The Reason Porto Ricans Carry Umbrellas at Night.

"The majority of Porto Ricans have instilled in them from earliest infancy a superstitious dread of the full moon's rays," said a business man who has resided for many years in that country.

"It is a curious sight to the American visitor to note men and women going along the streets and highways of the island with umbrellas raised over their heads in the moon's rays of the night and the more intimately the moon is shown the greater will be the number of people who are thus protecting themselves from her beams. Out to the sequestered rural districts a girl mounted on a mule will be met at midnight, his bridle rein in one hand and an upraised umbrella in the other. It looks weird and also ridiculous but the natives do it for a peculiar reason. They are possessed of the conviction that Luna's full light striking upon mortals is almost sure to make them mentally unsound—that is to say, lunatics—and that is why they interpose a shield between them and her dazzling brightness.

"To sleep where the moon could shine full upon one is, in the view of a Porto Rican to tempt fate and it would be a daring one who could be bribed to do it for any consideration."

STRENUOUS LIVING.

A Long Day in the Life of an English Lady in 1791.

As for industrious idleness, which is held to blame for the wrecking of our nervous systems, it was not unknown to an earlier generation. Miss de Bruin assures us that in her youth pleasure loving people would leave Brussels early in the morning, travel all day to Paris to hear the opera and travel all night home. "That," she observes—a well she may—"was considered being fond of the opera."

A paragraph in one of Horace Walpole's letters gives us the record of a day and a night in the life of an English lady—sixteen hours of "strain" which would put New York to the blush. "I heard the Duchess of Gordon's journal of last Monday," he writes to Miss Berry in the spring of 1791. "She first went to hear Handel's music in the abbey; she then clambered over the benches and went to Hastings' trial in the hall, after dinner to the play, then to Lady Lucan's assembly, after that to Ranelagh and returned to Mrs. Hobert's faro table, gave a ball herself in the evening of that morning into which she must have got a good way and set out for Scotland the next day. Hercules could not have accomplished a quarter of her labors in the same space of time."—Atlantic Monthly

A Pretty Poor Portrait

A Chinaman of very high rank had his portrait painted, and when it was finished the painter requested him to inquire of the preserver what they thought of it. The other agreed and asked the first question.

"Do you think this portrait like?"

"The hat is extremely like," replied the critic.

The subject of the portrait asked a similar question of a second stranger who answered that the clothes seemed to be exactly reproduced. He was about to interrogate a third when the painter stopped him and said impatiently:

"The resemblance of the hat and clothes is of no importance. Ask the gentleman what he thinks of the face."

On being asked this question the stranger hesitated a very long time but at last he replied:

"The beard and hair are first rate."

London as It Was

Haydn's Dictionary of Dates makes the statement that the old name of the city of London was written Lynden or Llyndin, meaning 'the city on the lake.' An old tradition gives us to understand that London was founded by Brutus, a descendant of Aeneas, and called New Troy or Troy novant until the time of Lud, who surrounded the town with walls and named it Caer-Lud, or Lud's Town. This latter is probably the correct version of the story, if for no other reason because it is an easy matter to detect a similarity between the expression Lud's Town and London. It is claimed by some writers that there was a city on the same spot 1,100 years B. C. and it is known that the Romans founded a city there called Londinium A. D. 61.

Real Modesty.

"An actor should be modest, and most actors are," said a prominent one at a luncheon in Pittsburgh. "But I know a young actor who at the beginning of his career carried modesty almost too far."

"This young man inserted in all the dramatic papers a want advertisement that said:

"Engagement wanted—small part, such as dead body or outside shouts preferred."

Preferences.

"I think I'll spend my vacation on the lynx," said the first sea. "I'm fond of gold."

"The giraffe for mine," declared the second sea. "I need the highest altitude I can find."—Washington Herald

MEN OF ACTION.

Served as an illustration for the Professor's Lecture.

"How did you like Professor Newman?" one of the summer residents of Wilkesboro asked Mr. Liram Gale. "I saw his name on the list of lecturers in your last winter's course."

Mr. Gale stretched his chin reflectively. "Well, some thought he was kind of stiff in his speech at first, but I tell you what happened:

"He got kind of worked up telling a what 'men of action' meant, what the government of these United States was doing in Alaska, the Philippines, and so on, and he stepped a mile too high the edge of the platform and lost his balance. But as he began to fall, Sam Hobart and Pick Willis, that were in the front seat, stood up and caught him, one by each arm, and brought him up standing. He bulged out at his knees for a minute, but nothing spoke of."

"An," says Pick to him, "The word you spoke was 'university', an' maybe before you mount again you'll give us some kind of a lecture."

"The professor looked from Pick to Sam and back to Pick again, kind of dazed, and then he began to laugh. "You let me mount," he says, and I'll see to it that the rest of my lecture you won't need a third party. An' he kept his promise."

"Yes, sir, he gave us a fine talk after that, an' he's coming again. I had him to breakfast next morning and my wife said she wouldn't want to hear anybody talk more sensibly, yet more common and friendly than I did. But there was a piece in the Standard last week referring to this man as 'Whitcomb's man of action' and I read the article and I stick to him as they do." Youth's Companion.

TRIED TO BE NICE.

But Fannie Made an Awful Mess of It With the Old Lady.

"When Fannie is in a good mood, she can certainly make a good mess of things. Last evening Charlie Evans, having arrived at the point where he felt he wanted to know the opinion of me, invited us both up to take tea with his mother. The minute I laid eyes on his mother I knew Fannie would get in trouble—she simply can't help getting nervously foolish when there's a girl in the room around."

"Charlie's mother blessed us and, addressing herself to Fannie as the elder said something about our being very sweet to come and see a daughterless old woman. Whereat Fannie looked at Charlie and his two brothers and replied feelingly that it must be a terrible disappointment to have out them. Mrs. Evans, to rectify my sister's misapprehension, told us proudly that she had three more sons, not present."

"By this time Fannie realized that she had made a bad beginning and leaped further in with the supposition that the other three were off having a good time instead of moping at home. The older lady drew herself up and said severely:

"My three sons are to heaven, Miss Barnes."

"Oh, how awful!" came Fannie's ready gasp.

"No, not awful at all!" and Mrs. Evans was positively glaring at us. "I feel that they were specially blessed in being allowed to pass thus early to their Lord. They died as little children."

"Dear me, how glad you must have been!" blurted out dustered Fannie.

"By this time I had kicked a hole in the ankle, and that quieted her for awhile. She might have kept still for the rest of the evening had not her per subject, the higher education of woman, come up for the old lady's disapproval. Then Fannie made a band spring into the conversation by remarking that when we had more educated mothers there would be less infant mortality."

"And, mind you, Fannie was really trying to be nice for my sake."—New York Times.

Arctic Rock Weed.

Drifting down from Alaska comes the greatest of all sea plants, the arctic rock weed, that grows in shape like a huge ship's bauser and sometimes with branches 500 feet long. There are no signs of leaves, but at intervals of a fathom or so a knob for all the world like the buoy on a drift net, grows around the stem, nodding, as does the buoy, in keeping the plant afloat and creating the impression that some nets have gone astray. —New York World.

Six Follies of Science

The six follies of science are the squaring of the circle, perpetual motion, the philosopher's stone, the elixir of life, magic and astrology.

In all ages men of unbridled ability have toiled early and late to unravel the mysteries supposed to be connected with these fascinating problems. It is not always remembered that such intellectual giants as Bacon, Sir Robert Boyle and Sir Isaac Newton sought the philosopher's stone. In the study of astrology Lilly was for a time even pensioned by parliament.

Most of these "follies" conferred indirect benefits upon science, for in seeking one thing their devotees discovered many another. The craze for the secret, or unknown, has still its hold upon men and is seen in palmistry and kindred cults.
